

VINYAN STUDIO • MIND & CALM SERIES

ANXIETY RELIEF Workbook

Practical Exercises & Journal Prompts for Lasting Calm

How to Use This Workbook

This workbook pairs with the Anxiety Relief Guide. Where the guide explains the 'why,' this workbook is where the practice happens. Print it, use it digitally, or copy pages as needed — it's designed to be used again and again, not just once.

There's no required order. Start with the Daily Tracker if you want structure, or jump to whichever worksheet matches what you're feeling right now.

Daily Anxiety & Mood Tracker

Fill this in once a day, ideally at the same time, to build a picture of your patterns over time.

Date	Anxiety (1–10)	Mood	Sleep (hrs)	Trigger / Notes

Breathing Practice Log

Track which breathing technique you used, how long you practiced, and how your anxiety level changed. This helps you learn which technique works best for you in which situation.

Date	Technique Used	Before (1–10)	After (1–10)	Situation

Thought Challenge Worksheet

Use this whenever a worry thought feels overwhelming. Working through it on paper creates distance between you and the thought.

1. What is the anxious thought?

2. What evidence supports this thought?

3. What evidence goes against this thought?

4. What would you tell a friend having this exact thought?

5. What's a more balanced, realistic thought?

6. How anxious do you feel now (1–10)?

Gratitude & Grounding Prompts

Anxiety narrows focus toward threat. Gratitude widens it back out. Answer any three prompts below each day.

What's one small thing that went right today?

Who is someone you're grateful to have in your life, and why?

What's something your body did for you today, even something small?

What's a place that makes you feel calm, and what does it look like?

What's one thing you're looking forward to, even a small one?

What's a strength you used today, even in a small way?

Trigger Identification Log

Recognizing your specific triggers turns vague anxiety into something concrete and workable.

Trigger	Physical Signs	First Thought	How You Responded	What Might Help Next Time

Weekly Reflection

What was my average anxiety level this week?

What pattern did I notice in my triggers or symptoms?

Which technique helped the most this week?

What's one thing I want to try differently next week?

One thing I'm proud of from this week:

Values & Calm-Life Goals

Long-term resilience is easier to sustain when it's connected to what actually matters to you.

What does a calmer version of my daily life look like?

What matters most to me that anxiety sometimes gets in the way of?

One small step I can take this month toward that:

Daily Anxiety & Mood Tracker — Continued

A second tracker sheet, for whenever your first one fills up.

Date	Anxiety (1–10)	Mood	Sleep (hrs)	Trigger / Notes

Symptom Self-Check

Circle or mark any that apply to you this week. This isn't a diagnostic tool — just a way to notice your own patterns more clearly.

Physical

Racing heart	☐ Rarely ☐ Sometimes ☐ Often
Shallow breathing	☐ Rarely ☐ Sometimes ☐ Often
Muscle tension	☐ Rarely ☐ Sometimes ☐ Often
Stomach upset	☐ Rarely ☐ Sometimes ☐ Often
Fatigue	☐ Rarely ☐ Sometimes ☐ Often
Restlessness	☐ Rarely ☐ Sometimes ☐ Often

Emotional & Cognitive

Racing thoughts	☐ Rarely ☐ Sometimes ☐ Often
Irritability	☐ Rarely ☐ Sometimes ☐ Often
Difficulty concentrating	☐ Rarely ☐ Sometimes ☐ Often
Sense of dread	☐ Rarely ☐ Sometimes ☐ Often

Cognitive Distortion Identifier

Write a recent anxious thought, then check which pattern(s) it matches.

Thought 1:

■ Catastrophizing ■ All-or-nothing ■ Mind reading ■ Fortune telling ■ Should statement ■ Emotional reasoning ■ Personalization

Thought 2:

■ Catastrophizing ■ All-or-nothing ■ Mind reading ■ Fortune telling ■ Should statement ■ Emotional reasoning ■ Personalization

Thought 3:

■ Catastrophizing ■ All-or-nothing ■ Mind reading ■ Fortune telling ■ Should statement ■ Emotional reasoning ■ Personalization

Gradual Exposure Ladder

List a situation you tend to avoid because of anxiety, then break it into smaller steps from easiest to hardest.

Step	Description	Anxiety (1–10)	Completed
1			■
2			■
3			■
4			■
5			■
6			■

My Support Network

List the people, professionals, and resources you can turn to. Having this written down in advance makes it easier to reach out when things feel harder.

Name / Resource	How They Can Help	Contact

Calm Ritual Builder

Design one new calming habit using the cue-routine-reward structure.

Cue (when will I do this?):

Routine (what will I actually do — keep it small):

Reward (how will I notice it helped?):

Weekly Reflection — Week 1

What was my average anxiety level this week?

What pattern did I notice in my triggers or symptoms?

Which technique helped the most this week?

What's one thing I want to try differently next week?

One thing I'm proud of from this week:

Weekly Reflection — Week 2

What was my average anxiety level this week?

What pattern did I notice in my triggers or symptoms?

Which technique helped the most this week?

What's one thing I want to try differently next week?

One thing I'm proud of from this week:

Weekly Reflection — Week 3

What was my average anxiety level this week?

What pattern did I notice in my triggers or symptoms?

Which technique helped the most this week?

What's one thing I want to try differently next week?

One thing I'm proud of from this week:

Weekly Reflection — Week 4

What was my average anxiety level this week?

What pattern did I notice in my triggers or symptoms?

Which technique helped the most this week?

What's one thing I want to try differently next week?

One thing I'm proud of from this week:

Monthly Review

Overall, how has this month compared to last month?

What's one pattern I now understand better about myself?

What's one tool I want to keep using next month?

What's one thing I'll adjust next month?

My Early Warning Signs

List the specific signs that tend to show up before a harder stretch for you.

Sleep & Wind-Down Tracker

Pairs with the Sleep & Nighttime Anxiety guide in your Bonus Pack. Track your wind-down routine and how rested you feel.

Date	Bedtime	Wake Time	Wind-Down Done?	Rested (1–10)
			■
			■
			■
			■
			■
			■
			■
			■
			■
			■

Gratitude Jar

Fill in one line whenever something good happens, however small — a running collection to revisit on harder days.

90-Day Calm-Life Goals

Looking further out than a single week or month — where do you want your relationship with anxiety to be in 90 days?

In 90 days, I'd like to be able to:

The habits that will get me there:

How I'll know it's working:

Closing Notes

Use this page freely for anything that doesn't fit elsewhere — a thought, a reminder, a note to your future self.
